London Jobless Wed to Get Extra Dole
for Married Men

London, Jan. 6.—Some of London's unemployed are getting married because two can live more expensively than one. The unemployment dole is increased when the workless workman takes a bride and there is, of course, the further consideration that some brides can add to the family income by working themselves.

Persons seeking servants are writing to the newspapers and the labor exchange that their servant girls are leaving good jobs to marry men with no employment, no prospects and no home.

'CONNIE' WAITS
HER DIVORCE TO WED

Los Angeles, Jan. 6.—Person closest to Constance Talmadge, the screen star, were convinced today that she will be married to William Rhineland Stewart, Jr., wealthy official of a New York insurance firm, when she obtains her final decree in divorce from Joseph C. Phipps, the Greek-American cigarette king.

"Connie" did deny that she would wed Stewart, but her denial was so faint that it hardly registered. She called attention to the fact that she is still technically wedded to Phipps. She is waiting for her final decree, the interlocutory one having been granted last June.

More convincing still is Connie's failure to deny that she has written to Phipps friends that she would eventually become Mrs. Stewart.

For those combined reasons friends of the star are looking for a new matrimonial "close-up" for Connie, with Stewart in the picture this time, as soon as the Phipps "divorce" is completed.

BIG BOOZE BRIBERY PLOT

NEW BOMB BY KLAN MILWAUKEE CITIES

SCHOFIELD ACCOUNTS FOUND Q.K.

Letters Found in Abandoned
Auto Furnish Clue in Mystery

Brooklyn, Jan. 6.—Secretary McKelney of the Stacy, Adams Shoe Company announced today that an audit of the books showed that the accounts of Thomas Schofield, who disappeared last Tuesday, an hour after having been appointed treasurer, were regular and that he did not live because of any financial trouble.

This official announcement cleared away doubt and rumor that Schofield's accounts may have been involved and deepened the mystery surrounding his disappearance.

Late developments all tend to indicate that Schofield was suffering from a breakdown and that he may have wandered off, a victim of insanity. He had been working hard as assistant treasurer, and betrayed symptoms which are now being checked up by his business and social intimates.

Secretary McKelney said today: "The annual audit of the books had been completed just before Mr. Schofield went away. It showed him and all accounts to be straight as a string. That dispels a financial motive. Furthermore, there were no negotiable securities available to Schofield at the time and he never handled money, nor did he indorse checks.

HANDLED NO MONEY.
The cashier handled checks and money. Mr. Schofield as treasurer would merely forward checks. Checking up of the accounts makes disappearance all the more baffling.

Inspector Long said local hospitals and sanitariums had been canvassed when he discovered the abandoned automobile. She notified William E. Nash of Lake street, Abington, whose house was nearest to the deserted car.

He is in turn called the police, who took the letters. They were addressed to Schofield.

The trail of the missing man leads to Boston. There it lies itself in South Boston.

DRY AGENT CHARGES BRIBERY

Two Men Trapped in Alleged Plot to "Hush Up" Official in Springfield

Springfield, Jan. 6.—An alleged plot to bribe Federal prohibition agents to protect a selected list of Hampden County saloon keepers, was disclosed here today when a large sum of money was placed in the hands of Agent Warren S. Fielding at his home in this city.

According to Fielding and other agents who were hidden in the house to watch the transaction, a member of the liquor ring called at Fielding's home shortly after midnight, with Harold L. Harvey, former federal agent, now under suspension. The agents in hiding revealed themselves to Harvey and his companion after money had been passed, it is charged.

Nathaniel Harvey nor his companion were detained of the time, but it was announced today that applications for arrest will be made to the local United States Commissioner.

State Probation Director Elmer C. Potter was in the city today and is accredited with arranging the trap for emissaries of the county liquor ring.

KKK BOMB LEADERS SCARE INJURED TO MALDEN 'GET BUSY'

Alumni of Catholic High School Guard the Buildings After Rumored Threat

Fearing an attack by members of the Ku Klux Klan, more than 200 alumni of the Immaculate Conception Parish School, Malden, patrolled until midnight the street in front of the new $100,000 high school building which the parish is building.

This action was prompted by a report that the Klan had planned to bomb the building last night. Rev. Monsignor Richard Nease, pastor of the church, today denied threats to have been spread yesterday, but Father Nease announced that the opening had been postponed because the building was not ready. Immediately Malden was filled with rumors of a Klan plot.

It was rumored that a letter had been sent to Father Nease, telling him that if the high school was opened the Klan would bomb it. It was also rumored that a Klan banner had been found tacked on the wall of the building.

Father Nease denied receiving the letter, but the rumor spread and when night came more than 200 of the alumni had gathered. They patrolled the streets about the school until midnight. Then, when no hooded Klansmen appeared, they broke up and left the night watchman to keep vigil alone.

The new building is a large, two-story brick structure and is an addition to the school plant of two other buildings. The new building is planned to house 800 pupils. The other two schools house 1,100.

BOXING GAME NOW SITTING UP AND TAKING NOURISHMENT

BUSY PROGRAM FOR OUR MITT ARTISTS

By JACK CONWAY.

Mister Boxing Game is sitting up!

The grand old man is taking nourishment.

He's decided this is not such a hard, cruel world after all.

The fans are giving attention.

Well-headed fighters and their managers are listening to reason.

The promoters are to be given a chance to live.

Friend public is to receive some action.

Even the boys in the small towns are to be furnished an occasional bout.

Miss Nurse, you may give the patient a little more orange juice.

That's better!

He should be walking in a week or so. In a month he'll be joining in the flapper parade along Tremont street.

Matchmaker Alex McClen of the Army Club has helped the old boy recover. He has had thirty-eight rounds of boxing for his show at the Grand Opera House Tuesday night.

Steve Gustin quarrels with Johnny Fox. Remember the tough little fellow who staged at the Arena?

Tommy Lee takes on Mike Castle.

Frankie Johnson will try to knock Frankie Ryan.

Kid Green quarrels with Mike Mandot.

As the Arena club will not operate Monday night, the Triple A show should draw big.

New Manager Boston Red Sox, Former Peerless Leader of Champion Chicago Cubs.

CHAPTER XI.

As I have related earlier in this series, we sat in on Clark in the 1910 campaign and were easily beaten in the Fall by Connie Mack's great Athletics team. Our team was slipping now. Those who had been real years when our pennant drives were all done. Age was beginning to creep up on the rest of us.

The great story of that team had come into their glory at about the same time. Consequently they began to hit the skids in a bunch. All our regulars had been in the big show for about ten years at least. And that stretch of service will take the edge off anybody in the matter of speed. There have been a few, but mighty few, exceptions to this.

We were a bunch of cripples through 10, with plenty of score arms, charity horses, pulled ten-dollar things like that. A few boys help any team, but when the whole outfit is leg weary, it's something different.

The Cubs finished second in '11 and never the following year. They were through. I was trying to build up and get young material, but as you know, the club owner, having made his fortune, was unwilling to cut loose and go after another. I showed him where he wasn't running any risks, but it was no go.

With Diamond for Ranch on the Coast.

So finally in '13, I left the team, disgusted, and went over to the Tanks and stumbled into exactly the same thing. That drove me out to the Coast, where I was nothing but a rancher until '15, when I bought into the Los Angeles team. I did so with the agreement that I could get my money out any time I saw fit.

After losing money by winning the pennant that year, I was through, and tried to get my capital. But I was put off and off.

THE WEEKS BUSINESS IN NEW ENGLAND

BETTER BUSINESS EXPECTED DURING EISING YEAR

That 1932 should be a prosperous year for New England industries is the consensus of opinion of a large number of leaders in New England's activities. While nothing of boom proportions is anticipated, it is expected that a noticeable improvement will be registered over the conditions of 1932.

No appreciable diminution of a large amount of the office and mercantile structures for which the arrangements were made and preliminary work began during the latter part of the past year will require practically all of the ensuing year to complete.

Additional many new enterprises are expected to be announced, though the number will be considerably less than during the past twelve months.

The industrial construction is expected to equal or exceed the figures reached in 1932—a record-breaking total. The entire country, and particularly Eastern New England, is still considerably underbuilt as concerns residential property. While speculative building on a large scale is not looked for, it is expected that there will be an increased demand for moderately priced homes, ownership of which is to be obtained by a moderate first payment.

The most noteworthy increase expected are in the line of industrial construction. Many plants which expanded greatly during the boom and post-war period, find their facilities inadequate to take care of the increased volume of business in prospect.

MONEY TO BE EASY.
Money is expected to continue plentiful for legitimate business needs, with correspondingly easy charges. Should the farmers enjoy a bountiful harvest, there would remain two factors which would be likely to speed the money prospects. These two factors are: actual outbreak of hostilities in Europe, and failure of the transportation system to meet the demands of a strong business revival.

The inability of the railroads, even at the present time, to handle the amount of business offered, with resultant embargoes is having a serious effect upon business in many quarters. Many of the railroads are maintaining strict embargoes against every kind of merchandise not classed as essential. On December 31 there was a shortage of 99,000 cars as compared with the demand, according to the report of the general manager of the American Railway Association. This was a considerable improvement, however, over the shortage prevalent during November.

A ray of hope is seen in the large orders for cars, which have been placed and are contemplated by leading Western roads. Many thousands of new cars of all types have been ordered for delivery during the Spring and continuing until well into the Fall. Additional motive power is being purchased in an attempt to prevent a recurrence of the conditions that have existed for the past several months.

Although France is eating the salt, the probability of war is largely discounted, as it is felt that the financial situation in Europe is such that the strain of a prolonged war could not be endured, either by France or by her possible allies or enemies.

ATTITUDE FAVORABLE.
The attitude of labor at the present time is favorable. Unless there should be a noticeable increase in the cost of living, due to such causes as higher cost of money and scarcity of basic materials, such as steel and coal, owing to increased demand, it is not felt that there will be much difficulty with labor. The greatest danger anticipated in this respect is a lowering of efficiency, owing to the increase in the number of jobs compared with the available labor supply.

The action of labor of textile organizations in buying, and announcing the contemplation of purchasing mills in the South, has caused a divergence of opinion. While many believe that the mills are entitled to better treatment than they have received here, others say that this has been made possible because of the high efficiency of New England. These latter two claims that the mill-men would be "killing the goose that laid the golden eggs." If they were to attempt to produce the same quality of goods under the disadvantages of less skilled Southern labor.

TRANSPORTATION PROBLEM.
Should the discriminatory differential be continued, further to increase, it is felt that shipping from Boston would enjoy a tremendous boom and indirectly affect favorably many other lines of business.

The most serious obstacle from a strictly New England standpoint to its better year during 1932 is the broken-down condition of the two principal railroads serving this section. Owing to their impaired financial condition, no plans have been made for obtaining large amounts of new equipment, as has been done by other better financed roads in the West. Unable to handle expeditiously now the volume of freight available, it is feared that a big boom in business would have the effect of choking the local transportation arteries, with the result that much business longed for by New England, would be diverted to other sections.

to, but I thought it safer to stay on the Coast and watch my investments there.

It was that year, I believe, that Fred Mitchell stepped into the managerial role, and his choice probably was a very wise one, for he won the pennant a couple of years later.

Since that time I have had several offers, some very fine ones, but none that appealed to me quite as much as the present chance. I have a chance to get even with the bad breaks of the past.
